

Chris Beland

10/31/15

English 12A

All it Takes is Just One...

The places you can go and the places you can drive are immense.

You can drive to the park or to the fair.

You can drive in the dark or eat a pear if you dare.

When you drive, take your time.

To check your phone is like stepping on a 3 story tightrope after a ride on the spiny cups.

The world is in front of you on a platter just like Saturday morning pancakes.

But it can be taken away from you in just one error, one slip up.

One quick glance can lead to one quick accident.

An accident is not a quick clean up though.

It makes a forever lasting impact like sticky syrup spilt onto a rug.

But the clean up is not sweet like syrup it stings like a bumble bee and lasts forever.

Though this might not rhyme, it still is not fine to drink and drive.

Would you intentionally murder someone?

Would you hit some one so hard they fall over like a building hit with a wrecking ball.

That is what you do if you text and drive.

Don't even try to drive if you can't keep your eyes on the prize.

Your life is more important than a stupid text.

It is not worth the mess, just use your brilliant head.

There are 727040 pixels that you see on your iPhone.

Are those pixels worth the many years you have left?

Look to the future it is bright, much brighter than your phone or even the sunlight.

Your brain has over 60-70 thousand thoughts a day.

These thoughts travel through more than 100 billion neurons.

With so much complexity and amazing abilities in your brain anything is possible.

Use It!

Don't enter a car with a drunk or texting driver. Be a Survivor.

No text is worth the mess.

No drink is worth the broken link that you will cause your family.

Only you can decide if you want survive.

Living in the present is great.

Just make sure your present choices don't destroy your future plans.

Life is short there is no reason to risk it being shorter.