

Arrive Alive Poem
By: Dylan Rogers

Drinking and driving ain't no joke
And when I say drinking I'm not talking about coke It's essential that you arrive alive
So think about that every time you're gonna drive

There's no point to drink or text
It can wait or you might be next To have your life ended short But it's something that you can thwart

You just have to make the right choices and listen to the positive voices People don't say it just for fun they don't want you to be the next one

Drinking and driving is really bad and if you hurt someone or yourself it's really sad Texting while you drive is a really bad decision
You take your eyes off the road and lose all precision

There's really no reason that it can't wait or just pull over to reply to your date.
People don't think that driving takes any skill but not paying attention can actually kill

Nobody realizes how bad it can be until it happens to someone they know and then they see that things can go bad really quick and then it starts to click

Sometimes the people distracted walk away fine while the innocent people get hurt, it blows my mind But still people don't think twice friends try to prevent them, they're just being nice

So don't get mad when you hear it again Let it sink in and and you'll see then that it's not hard to make the right call next time you're driving out to the mall

I hope this poem helped the cause
Be safe and follow the laws Don't text or drink and drive
So that next time you arrive alive.
