

Momma Always Said

Momma always said don't drink and drive,
People who make that decision almost never get out alive
So don't get in a car with someone who is drinking
Because they're clearly not thinking, & their judgement is surely sinking

They're not evaluating their situation
They're not thinking about ending up at the police station
Or in the emergency room as a patient
Or even in the courtroom explaining how they murdered you

There's really nothing I can do besides try to advise you
Fake friends put you in danger, trust me it's true
I can't make you listen to me, or force you to make good choices
All I ask is that you don't fall victim to the voices

Arrive alive and always keep your eyes on the road
Don't let anything distract you when in an automobile
The one slip up could potentially cost you your life, it's an unfair deal
Think of how much we would miss you, it's all too real

Don't risk someone's life through your irresponsibility
When under the influence, you lose your ability to maintain agility
You have the capability to change the probability
Of being in an accident and preventing a fatality

Remember to keep your head straight, and plan ahead
Be aware of your surroundings, or you could end up in a hospital bed
And if things get really bad, you actually end up dead
So make the right choices, and don't risk anyone's life

All in all, like momma always said, don't drink and drive
Arrive Alive
