

Brianna Wilson

“Arrive Alive”

It has always started in the same way,
“It will only take a second,” they’ll say.
Or “I have only had one drink tonight”,
And none of their friends will put up a fight.

But there’s one night that everything will change;
That second of texting will rearrange,
Or that one little drink will become more
Than what the driver had told you before.

Soon enough something awful will happen;
You or your friends won’t get lucky again.
Why throw out your life from a collision,
Because of a dangerous decision?

So leave your phone ‘til your driving is done,
And don’t drive drunk, do not drink even one.
The world is here so that we all can thrive,
So be safe when you drive-- arrive alive.