

Kevin Hardy

I have a question... why drink and drive? Stop to think of all the things that could go wrong. You say nothing will happen when you drink and drive? The cold fact is you can kill yourself or you can kill a family that you do not even know.

I ask again. Why drink and drive... nothing good can come out of this foolish act. If you drink and drive you'll just be another obituary in the morning paper. Don't forget what affect it will have on your family, friends, and loved ones.

So I ask once again. Why drink and drive... why go to that party with your friends when you could hang out with your little brother. You are the person he looks up to. What will he think when you are drinking and driving? He will think it is okay to drink and drive, so please stop and think of him. Your friends may not like it but they will forget. Your brother will never forget the day his best friend and mentor died in a car accident because he was drinking.

Why are you drinking? Do you think you will be considered cool and people will want to be around you? Drinking and driving makes you cool till you crash and die. Why end your life when it has just begun. There are so many things that you have not gotten to do yet, like have your own family. There is nothing better than seeing your child grow up and live a wonderful life.

So why drink and drive? Think of it this way; what if you live from the crash and the family in the other car does not make it? The woman in the passenger's seat is pregnant. What if they do not make it and the baby in the back does not make it? Can you live with the fact that you are alive even though you killed the people in the other car? What about the unborn baby? He/she has not had the chance to see his/her mother's face. There is nobody to blame but yourself. You drank and drove, and killed the people.

Nobody can take the blame for you. It is time to step up and take responsibility for your actions. This could all have been avoided if you took action and said, "No, I will not drive drunk. I will arrive alive!"