

Allow the Innocent to Survive

The young child was exceedingly sweet
So full of life, flourishing innocence
T'was beyond the description of unique
Young, naïve, deficient of vigilance

The child was cared for, nurtured, and cherished.
All who came across her beauty were changed.
Unfairly she prematurely perished.
Taken away by the selfish deranged.

He was an inebriated driver
So blind to consequence, and distracted.
Now he regrets being the survivor
Apprehending the lives he impacted.

The beautiful soul carried off too soon.
She didn't deserve her disturbing fate
Which came upon a summer night in June
Compelled by an intoxicated state

The preventable act happens each day
Many hold the power to stay alive
Hold back the urge and put the keys away and allow the innocent to survive
