

Mile By Mile

By

Samuel Burghardt

Starts out on a saturday night

All the clubs are filled with light

Living mile by mile

With this harsh lifestyle

With a family at home

That he can't leave alone

He gets in the car

Without knowing the drive ahead will be far

One hand clutching the steering wheel

In this situation that is not ideal

Struggling to stay between the lines

Driving drunk not caring about the fines

With the pedal to the floor

And everything to care for

Sliding off the road

As time slowed

countless memories flashing through his mind

The car found in the trees intertwined

The knock at the door

The family not ready for what is in store

The family in shock

Hoping they could have one last talk

The bad decisions you make

Can cause the people around you heart break

In this world you must strive

To arrive alive
