Distracted driving is no joke

The lives it takes are no longer on the road

The lives it takes never return home

The lives it takes will never be replaced

They will never grow another day old

They will never get to say another hello

They will never get to say I love you to another soul

The guilt you feel will grow and grow

The family will look at you to blame

The rest of their lives will never be the same

They'll ask you what did the text say

They'll ask why couldn't it wait

They'll ask was it worth all this pain

Don't text and drive it can wait
