

Temptation:

In night's glow, the laughter swells,
With friends around, the stories tell.
But when the night's sweet song begins,
A choice must be made, the battle within.

A glass raised high, a cheer, a toast,
Yet one poor choice can haunt the most.
For as the wheels spin, fate draws near,
Drunk driving's grip brings shadows of fear.

The road ahead is a winding thread,
A heavy heart, a life to dread.
What once was joy can swiftly change,
In a heartbeat's blink, a life exchanged.

Each mile a memory, each turn a chance,
Don't let temptation lead to mischance.
Life's a precious gift, not to be tossed,
Think of the loved ones, the lives that are lost.

Stay safe, arrive alive—hold the keys,
Let sober hands guide you with ease.
For joy is best found in daybreak's light,
Celebrate wisely, embrace what's right.

So raise a glass, but drive with care,
Be the hero, the one who's aware.
Together we stand, our voices unite,
To honor the promise of every life bright.
